

Payment Structure Overview

Creek Horizon Tower is offered on an aggressive post-handover payment plan: only 10% is due before and at signing, 40% is spread across five construction-linked instalments, and the remaining 50% is deferred to ten quarterly instalments of 5% each, paid over two and a half years after Handover.

This structure is designed to reduce upfront cash requirements, but it means half of the total Purchase Price remains outstanding after keys are handed over, and continues to fall due under Clause 4.3 of the Agreement regardless of whether the Purchaser has secured a tenant.

Purchasers relying on rental income to fund post-handover instalments should stress-test their plan against periods of vacancy, since the quarterly instalment of AED 42,000 is due whether or not the Unit is let at that time.

Construction-Linked Milestones

Pre-handover milestones are certified by an independent project consultant appointed by the Developer. As of Q2 2026, the Developer reports overall project completion at approximately 14%, reflecting the early piling and foundation stage of the Project.

Given the Project's long runway to its Q2 2029 target and the 24-month Grace Period described in the Agreement, purchasers should treat the anticipated Handover Date as an early-stage estimate rather than a firm date, particularly given Vantage Point Developments' history of four-to-nine-month delays on its two prior projects.

The Developer's quarterly construction updates report structural, MEP, and finishing progress separately, with the blended percentage used to trigger milestone instalments 3 through 6.

Post-Handover Instalment Detail

The ten post-handover instalments (Instalments 7 through 16) are fixed calendar-based payments tied to the number of months elapsed since the Handover Notice date, not to any further construction or performance condition, since the Unit will already be complete.

Because these instalments continue irrespective of occupancy or leasing status under Clause 4.3 of the Agreement, purchasers financing the post-handover period from rental income should build in a buffer for vacancy periods between tenants, typically 2-4 weeks per re-let in Dubai Creek Harbour based on current leasing data.

Purchasers intending to sell shortly after Handover should note that any assignment before Practical Completion requires Developer consent under Clause 17.1, and that outstanding post-handover instalments become immediately due upon any permitted assignment.

Late Payment Penalty

Instalments not paid within 15 days of their due date accrue a late payment charge of 1.5% per month of the overdue amount, calculated from the original due date until the date of actual payment, which is a shorter grace window and a higher rate than typically seen on pre-handover-weighted plans.

Two or more instalments more than 15 days overdue entitle the Developer to issue a default notice under Article 14 of the Agreement, with only a 10-day cure period before termination and forfeiture rights arise.

Given the length of the post-handover schedule, purchasers should set up automatic payments where possible, since a single missed post-handover instalment two and a half years after signing carries the same default consequences as a missed instalment during construction.

Handover Balance and Fees

The Instalment 7 payment of 5% (AED 42,000) becomes due upon the Developer's Handover Notice, alongside the Dubai Land Department transfer fee of 4% of the Purchase Price (AED 33,600) and an Oqood registration fee, both payable before title registration is initiated.

Unlike fully front-loaded plans, purchasers here will still owe 45% of the Purchase Price (AED 378,000) after the Handover Balance is settled, spread across Instalments 8 through 16.

Purchasers are advised to confirm with their bank whether post-handover instalments can be mortgage-financed, since most UAE lenders require the property to be fully paid or refinance the developer instalments into a single mortgage at handover, which may not align with this instalment structure.
